I have been focusing on printmaking in the last five years. I am working at CU with Master Printmaker, Clinton Cline. I use a great variety of methods to create my work. The computer has been used as a drawing tool and helped to reproduce the image for the plates I use in printing. I work in several types of printmaking, photo intaglio, and lithography, woodcuts and mono prints. I prefer to produce work in a series that explore the myths and stories that interest me. A great deal of my work contains images depicting the relationships of animals, man and the environment.

I also paint in acrylics and pastels.
